Television producer David McCourt will discuss how the "American Dream" is changing during a Cape Cod Speaker Series event at 7 p.m. Aug. 6 at the Tilden Center for the Arts at Cape Cod Community College.

The presentation will explore opportunity, entrepreneurship and the future of the American Dream, according to a community announcement. Inspired by McCourt's PBS series, "Amerigo: The Search for the American Dream," the event will focus on how Americans are experiencing economic and social change in communities across the country.

McCourt, an Emmy Award-winning producer and global telecommunications executive, plans to share perspectives gathered from conversations with people in all 50 states, according to the announcement.

The event comes as the nation celebrates the 250th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Organizers say the presentation will encourage attendees to consider America's past, future and evolving definition of opportunity.

Tickets are available through the Cape Cod Speaker Series website at capecodspeakers.org.
